

Franz-Joseph Miller

CEO time:matters Holding GmbH

Curriculum Vitae

Franz-Joseph Miller is CEO and founder of time:matters Holding GmbH, located in Neu-Isenburg, Germany. As the expert for global Special Speed Logistics as well as for time-critical spare parts logistics, time:matters offers worldwide customized and last-minute logistics solutions for particularly urgent or complex special logistics assignments.

Franz-Joseph Miller joined Lufthansa Cargo AG in 2001 to take charge of the “top speed” courier services business, which he spun off into time:matters GmbH in 2002. In 2007 the management together with capital funds of the growth investor Aheim Capital GmbH acquired a majority stake and partnered with Lufthansa Cargo as a shareholder.

In 2006 Miller started the internationalization of time:matters with currently sixteen international Service Desks. In 2007 the company established Germany's only courier & express terminal at Frankfurt Airport and developed its time-critical spare parts distribution business, which serves some of the leading European companies. Today time:matters is one of the leading providers of Special Speed Logistics and one of the global experts in this market. On average the company has grown by more than 20% annually since 2002, growing to more than 78 Mio EUR in revenues in 2010.

Prior to founding time:matters Franz-Joseph Miller gained extensive management experience within various international companies. He founded his own fashion company and was responsible for Marketing & Sales at the internet company Jamba! AG.

The passionate entrepreneur studied law at Würzburg, Bayreuth and Lausanne and holds an MBA from J.L. Kellogg Graduate School of Management in Evanston, USA and Otto Beisheim School of Management (WHU) in Vallendar, Germany. Franz-Joseph Miller is married and has three boys.