

time:matters GmbH strengthens presence in China

Markus Leutner to head the time:matters branch office in Shanghai

Neu-Isenburg, May 2, 2011 – time:matters, the expert for global Special Speed Logistics, continues to pursue its growth course in Asia und expands its presence in China. In addition to Singapore, in the future Shanghai is to be established as a second strong location on the Asian market.

Markus Leutner will take on management of the Chinese time:matters branch office. He has a degree in Business Administration and gained extensive experience at DHL, including as Director Competence Centre China, in the areas of sales and business development and most recently worked as a freelancer in the fields of network development in China, logistics and consulting. In the newly created position of Country Manager China, Markus Leutner will, in addition to managing the time:matters office in Shanghai, focus especially on the development of further business potential within the local region.

Through the current investments in China, time:matters continues to expand its network in Asia and is therefore able to provide its customers with even more comprehensive transport solutions for particularly urgent and complex logistics challenges. The focus thereby is on tailor-made customer and industry solutions to and from China.

“We see enormous potential for time:matters on the Asian market and are pleased to be able to offer our customers on site in China professional and customized solutions in the area of Special Speed Logistics. For this reason we have selected Markus Leutner, who is an experienced manager and possesses a great deal of expertise in the Asian region, to head our team in Shanghai,” explains Franz-Joseph Miller, CEO of time:matters GmbH.
