Neu-Isenburg, April 16, 2019: time:matters, the expert in high performance and special speed logistics, concluded 2018 with €121.5m in sales revenue, up 12.5% on its record-breaking year in 2017. The company was able to build on its longstanding positive development in all focus industries and product categories and exceed all growth targets once again.

In 2018, time:matters focused on the sustainable digitization of its service portfolio and expansion of its global network. The logistics specialist tailored its actions specifically to customer needs, thereby laying the foundations for its successful growth. Among other measures taken, the company added 15 stations in the U.S. and one in Mexico to its Sameday Air network in the 2018 business year, thereby optimizing its overseas network coverage.

By acquiring CB Customs Broker GmbH and Customs Broker Cargo Handling GmbH in September, time:matters invested in the expansion of operational processes and added customs clearance and cargo handling options to its service portfolio. These offerings cover all standard customs procedures, tailored to individual client needs, including digital solutions for e-commerce logistics. time:matters has thus broadened its unique expertise in shipment and transport control, transport speed and service offering flexibility for customers trading globally.

In 2018, time:matters continued to pursue customer interface digitization and, as a result, can now offer fully automated tracking information updates, invoicing and other important core elements. The company has been setting standards in the industry with its unique airmates on board courier platform since 2017, which it continues to upgrade in line with customer needs and requirements.

Revenue generated through time:matters airmates has risen considerably since its 2017 launch. Customers with urgent or sensitive shipments can use airmates to obtain a complete quote for a personally accompanied transport in less than one minute, and then book this in just a few clicks.

Customers from the automotive, high-tech&semicon, life&health, medtech, aviation&aerospace, and logistics sectors were the main drivers of growth in 2018.

Certification in ISO 14001, the internationally recognized standard for successful environmental management, illustrates that the specialist in customized logistics solutions is not just growing rapidly, but also sustainably.

“We have again succeeded in achieving record revenue, due in no small part to constant innovations around our core competencies,” added Alexander Kohnen, CEO of time:matters. “We will continue on this path in 2019, while working on state-of-the-art digital solutions for our customers and increasing our breadth of industry expertise for our customers in the life&health, automotive and high-tech&semicon segments. We are planning further expansion, especially in the Asian market and the U.S., and are also ready for various Brexit outcomes thanks to our many years of experience and flexible logistics solutions.”

time:matters was again recognized for its superb performance in the logistics arena in 2018. The company received its fifth Achieving Excellence Award in a row in the area of spare parts logistics from John Deere. The specialized service provider also received the Automotive Logistics Award Europe in the Inbound Global Supply Chain Award category for its development of innovative processes and networks for the management of intercontinental supply chains.

“These awards confirm the excellent services we provide to our customers, day in and day out,” explained Lars Krosch, COO of time:matters. “We are proud that we have been able to not only maintain but actually continue to improve the high quality of our work, in spite of our constant growth.”
